C-USA MEN’S BASKETBALL INITIAL BROADCAST PACKAGE ANNOUNCED

IRVING, Texas – More than 110 nationally-televised or digital games featuring Conference USA men’s basketball on its home floor have been announced as part of the league’s media schedule released Tuesday. The total nearly doubles last year’s initial broadcast package announcement.

National games will be televised on partners CBS Sports Network, Stadium and beIN SPORTS. Contests will also stream on digital platforms Facebook – through CBSSN and Stadium - and ESPN. Additional coverage of C-USA basketball will be available on CUSA.tv, the league’s official streaming portal.

CBS Sports Network will air 11 games this season, including a bonus play game as part of the new C-USA men’s basketball schedule model, as well as the C-USA semifinals and championship game in Frisco, TX. CBS Sports Network will also produce seven contests that will stream on Facebook.

Stadium will receive 21 total games, including five bonus play games and all four of the C-USA Championship quarterfinal matches. Like CBSSN, Stadium will partner with Facebook to bring nine games to fans through Facebook.

beIN SPORTS will air 10 games, covering a pair of bonus play matchups, on its national broadcast channel. The matchups will also be available through beIN SPORTS CONNECT, the networks’ digital streaming platform.

ESPN will boast over 65 of the league’s home contests with the vast majority featured on ESPN+, the first multi-sport, direct-to-consumer subscription streaming service from The Walt Disney Company Direct-to-Consumer and International Segment in conjunction with ESPN.
